

Essential Information

CIS (The Centre of Italian for Foreigners) at the University of Bergamo has been organizing courses in the Italian language and culture for foreigners since 1978, courses for the teaching of Italian as a foreign language since 1991 and on-line language activities in blended learning environments. It also carries out various other activities including:

the publication of the CIS series for the training and updating of teachers of Italian as a foreign language (published by Guerra) and the publication of various books for the teaching of Italian to foreigners. CIS also participates in research projects in linguistic acquisition, sociolinguistics and the methodologies involved in the teaching of foreign languages.

The University is situated in the ancient upper town which is rich in artistic and historical monuments. The low part of Bergamo is a town of middle size which lies at the foot of the Orobic Alps not very far from beautiful lakes such as Iseo and Garda. It is also easy to reach Milan (35 Km. far away) by rail and motorway.
