COMPANY-BASED RESEARCH
Research outside Academia: Industrial Doctorates, Apprenticeships for Research Purposes, Fiscal Incentives and Cultural Benefits

International Conference organized by ADAPT and the International Doctoral School in Human Capital Formation and Labour Relations (University of Bergamo).
The Conference is one of the ADAPT international events on Productivity, Investment in Human Capital and the Challenge of Youth Employment

V Edition

TROMBINOSCOPE

Bergamo (Italy), 26-27 September 2014
Piazzale Sant’Agostino n. 2, Conference Room
MÓNICA BENITO BONITO is a research analyst at the Governing Council of the Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. She is also an Associate Professor in the Statistics Department at the same university. She is also member of the Research Institute for Higher Education and Science, INAECU. Her research interests mainly concern composite indicators for university rankings, career of doctorate holders and university-government-industry links. She also carries out scientific and empirical research on issues related to university education and university dropout. She has a PhD in Economics and she is specialist in Statistics and Operational Research. Her most recent publications include Modeling the enrollment demand of masters programs for the Spanish public university system and Improving quality assessment of composite indicators in university rankings: a case study of French and German universities of excellence.

GIUSEPPE BERTAGNA is a Professor of Education. His research activity focuses mainly on the following three areas. The first is a theoretical investigation regarding Educational Epistemology. His second area of interest is the Pedagogy of Work. In this connection, he coordinates the International Doctoral School in Human Capital Formation and Labour Relations set up in 2009. The third area of interest regards Pedagogy in Schools. In this connection, he runs the CQIA (Academy for Teaching and Learning Quality) of the University of Bergamo, that carries out scientific and empirical research on issues related to school education and which offers first level and second level masters, as well as courses and training for managers and school teachers of all levels.
CAROL COSTLEY is a Professor of Work Based Learning (WBL) and Head of Research and Research Degrees at the Institute for Work Based Learning, Middlesex University. She has a particular interest in Professional Doctorates and has written about the development of WBL as a field of study, especially multi and trans-disciplinarity, diversity, pedagogy, ethics and practitioner-researcher issues. She works internationally as a researcher and in the development of WBL and doctorate programmes of study.

KATIA INSOGNA graduated in International Economics in 2001 at the University of North London in UK. Since 2003 she has been working in the field of research, first as a national Coordinator in the European initiative ERAMORE/EURAXESS. In 2007 she joined APRE’s research liaison office in Brussels. In this position Katia was informing and assisting the Italian research community focusing on the EU Seventh Framework Programme of Research and Technological Development (RTD). She is now based in Rome as NCP for FP7 People, Regions of Knowledge, and Research Potential and H2020 NCP for MSCA and Widening Participation programmes. She has been actively involved as WP and task leader in many FP7 projects, such as ResPotNet, TransREg NCP, EuroSis 1, SiS. Net, PeopleNetwork, and she has coordinated the PeopleNetwork+ project until March 2014 (15 beneficiaries and more than 40 associated countries). She also conducts trainings on communication, project management, legal and financial issues and specific programmes of FP7 and H2020 at national and EU/international level.
Dr. ANNAMÁRIA INZELT is founding director of IKU Innovation Research Centre at the Financial Research Corp. She is Prime Member and Professor of the Doctoral School of Economics at the University of Szeged. Her main research interest includes the theoretical and practical issues of the innovation systems, collaboration between academic and non-academic sectors, mobility of highly skilled workforce between sectors and among countries. She has been providing expertise for the European Union, national and regional governments throughout Europe and a variety of national and international agencies and organisations (e.g. OECD, UNESCO). She is regularly publishing scientific papers in English and Hungarian.

PRZEMYSLAW JANKOWSKI finished law at the University in Poznan (Poland). He gave lectures at the University in Czestochowa (Poland), worked as Legal Advisor in law offices and private companies. He has also an IT background confirmed with certificates and active work as IT developer and Project Manager. In 2009 he joined the European Commission as Project Officer for Marie Curie actions in DG Research and Innovation. In the beginning he was managing reintegration projects for single researchers and later he was responsible for host-driven actions, which involve networks of institutions. Since 2012 Mr Jankowski is Policy Officer in DG Education and Culture. In his current position he is monitoring and developing policy for the Marie Skłodowska-Curie actions. His main domain is Innovative Training Networks (ITN), which is the leading scheme supporting the doctoral programmes. He is also a contact point for cooperation with Japan and Republic of Korea.
Dr. FUMI KITAGAWA works as Lecturer in Enterprise Studies at Manchester Business School, the University of Manchester. She works as part of the Manchester Institute of Innovation Research (MIoIR). Fumi has worked internationally, and written on the roles of universities in innovation systems and the role of universities in local economic development in different national contexts, including the UK, Sweden, Canada, South Korea and Japan. In 2013, Fumi led a pilot study, Understanding the EngD Impact supported and co-sponsored by the Association of the Engineering Doctorates (AEngD) and the UK Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC). She is currently developing a further study on doctoral training, scientific labour markets and management of innovation.

EMMANUELE MASSAGLI was born in Monza on January 19, 1983. After accomplishing a Classical studies Diploma, he attended the Faculty of Economics at Cattolica University in Milan. In 2009, thanks to his master’s thesis, Massagli was awarded the recognition “Marco Biagi” for “Best Thesis on Labour market” by the Italian Ministry of Law, Health and Social Policies, where he later worked as coordinator of the Technical Secretary, from 2010 to 2011. In 2012, he concluded his PhD in Industrial Relations Law and was appointed Research Fellow at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia. He is currently President of ADAPT, editor of the periodic Diritto delle Relazioni Industriali (Giuffrè), co-operator of Nuova Secondaria (La Scuola), member of the Advisory Board of Scuola Democratica (Guerini) and member of the Scientific Board of the Foundation ICSR. He also collaborates with national daily newspapers such as Il Giornale, Libero, Conquiste del Lavoro and ilSussidiario.net. Main areas of interest: Education and Labour Economy, Industrial relations, School-to-work Transition and Professional training.
ANDREA POTESTIO is researcher in General and Social Pedagogy and History of Pedagogy at the Department of Human and Social Sciences of the University of Bergamo. He has a Doctoral Degree in Pedagogical Sciences at the same University. Through a historical approach, he investigates labour pedagogy concerning such issues as workplace training, school-to-work transition, natural and progressive education. This analysis includes a deeper study of J.J. Rousseau’s work.

MICHELE TIRABOSCHI is Professor of Labour Law at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, Director of the Centre for International and Comparative Studies on Law, Economics, Environment and Work) at the Marco Biagi Department of Economics of the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia. He has been Visiting Professor at the University of Paris Pantheon-Assas (Paris) since 2004, at Universidad Tres de Febrero (Buenos Aires) since 2009 and at Middlesex University Business School (London) since 2011. He is founding editor and director of E-Journal of International and Comparative Labour Studies, established by ADAPT University Press. He is the deputy director of the Italian labour law review Diritto delle Relazioni Industriali (Giuffrè) and he is a member of the scientific committee of Scuola Democratica (Guerini e Associati). He is columnist on employment and industrial relations of the newspapers Il Sole 24 Ore and Avvenire. Michele Tiraboschi is one of the executive council’s members of AISRI (Associazione Italiana di Studio per le Relazioni Industriali). He has been a member of AIDLASS (Associazione Italiana di Diritto del Lavoro e della Sicurezza Sociale) since 1993 and partner of LERA (American Labour and Employment Relations Association) since 2010.
SIMONETTA ULIVIERI is Professor of Pedagogy at the Department of Education and Psychology of the University of Florence. Her research is concerned with social pedagogy and social history of education. She investigates the issues connected with female subjectivity and personality-building in relation to the Pedagogy of Difference. In 2009 she was appointed member of the Italian Society of Pedagogy (SIPED), of which she has been President since 2013.